

help for the stalled

Popular Reading and Viewing for Spring

Did you know that in addition to the scholarly resources in our library collections, we have popular materials that you can check out and use? For lighter reading, see the sitting area on M-Level, where the McNaughton Collection of popular reading houses a rotating selection of recent books. If you're looking for a break from the written word, the Audiovisual Center on A-Level offers movies, TV series, and more on DVD and video.

Have questions or feedback? Please write asklib@jhu.edu.

Reserve A-Level Group Study Spaces

For spring and fall semesters, there are now two reservable group study rooms on A-Level just south of the Government Publications, Maps, and Law area. Sign up on the doors!

Seeking First-Year Undergraduates

We're looking for first-year undergraduates to join the Sheridan Libraries' Student Advisory Committee. Send an email to asklib@jhu.edu and tell us why you're interested.

Libraries Student Survey

We'd love input on library spaces!
<http://tinyurl.com/39c34g>

Hunting for Computers?

Besides the M-Level electronic classroom, there are computers on A-Level in Government Publications, on B- and D-Levels to the left of the stairwells, and in the center of C-Level. Thanks to Karen Hong for the question!

Lav Notes is Online

See the sidebar of the blog:
<http://blogs.library.jhu.edu>

Flush with Ideas?

Send your ideas for Lav Notes to asklib@jhu.edu. We'll give you a gift card if we use your idea. Lav Notes is an occasional publication of Research Services, Sheridan Libraries, Johns Hopkins University.

